CURRENT COMMENTS

CIVIC CLEANLINESS.

Civic cleanliness has not advanced very far in Canada. The town dump, with all its tin cans, waste-paper, old rags, manure and ash conglomerate is frequently as much a public institution as the town hall and other civic institutions. For the sake of economy in cartage the dumps are frequently placed much too close to residential districts, and civic spatky permits them to remain there, and to grow in bulk and unsightliness.

Garbage must be disposed of, but why our civic authorities (we are not speaking in particular of our own civic authorities, but in general) should not insist upon burning up of so much of the house waste upon the premises, either in the furnace or the kitchen stove, is something to be marvelled at. If there were more domestic tidiness in Canadian towns and cities in the way of destruction of many articles of house waste by home cremation, the gross saving to the municipality would be considerable and the town dump would be less in evidence.

Then, too, the "dump" should be supervised, and men should be employed to burning all such materials as paper, cardboard and other boxes, discarded matting, straw, &c. This would result in the saving of space and prevent the scattering of the lighter materials by wind. Further, the destruction by fire of as much as possible of the material brought to the dump would prevent to some extent the fly nuisance from that quarter. On completion of the burning operations, the health department should insist that all garbage should be covered first with a layer of lime, and then with clean earth, the latter with a depth of at least three feet. Scrap should be sold.

The spring time is a good season to declare war on the town dumps and on filthy back yards and lanes.

A Faked-Up Case

In the absence of any evidence whatever or any other justification for his arrest, James Young, the well-known Calgary liveryman, who was taken into custody at Nanton before election day and serious charges laid against him by the Liberals, was discharged at Macleod last week by Judge McNeill.

Mr. Young had been out on bail of $1,000, and when his case came up W. M. Campbell, the crown prosecutor, announced that no evidence would be offered and on behalf the crown apologized for the arrest of Mr. Young.

The certificate of discharge, which shows that no justification of the arrest was even attempted, is as follows:

Canada, Province of Alberta.

I hereby certify that an information and complaint preferred by W. M. Seller of Nanton, against James Young of Calgary, for that "he, the said James Young, on the 15th day of April, of A.D.

1913, at Nanton, in the said province, did directly by himself give money to H. G. Petro, in consideration that he would vote for J. T. Cooper on April 17th, 1913, contrary to the election act of 1909, section 234, Clause A," was this day before me for consideration as a justice of the peace in and for the province of Alberta and no evidence being offered in support of the said information and complaint the same was by me dismissed with costs of witnesses to be paid by the informant.

Dated at Macleod this 30th day of April, A.D. 1913.
(Signed) Edward P. McNeill Judge of the district court of Macleod, acting as a justice of the peace in and for the province of Alberta, under the Alberta election act.

Pedigrees and Pay

The time to pay for a pedigree is when it is delivered. While most breeders are honorable men are procrastinating, some are negligent, and a few are downright dishonest.

In order to protect themselves against loss at the hands of the procrastinating and negligent, buyers of pure bred animals will do well when dealing with breeders of whose honesty they have no knowledge, to withhold a part of the purchase money till the pedigree is supplied, or at least to deposit it in a bank to be paid upon delivery of proper certificate of registration. This can be done without exposing either buyer or seller to any risk, and is perfectly fair to both. My experience with bank managers is that they are always willing to perform this service for the protection of their patrons.

As a rule the buyer pays over his money or writes his cheque for the full amount at the time of purchasing and the seller promises to forward a pedigree as soon as possible. Then after a year or more of waiting he wakes up to the fact that he has been "done." Sometimes he has sold the property of these animals with a promise to supply pedigrees, and he finds himself exposed to the danger, not only of disrepute, but also of an action for damages.
Now all of this could easily have been avoided by the exercise of a little caution at the time of buying.

The time of year is at hand when every person who contemplates buying a pure bred animal should keep in mind the warning contained in our opening sentence, that the time to pay for a pedigree is when it is delivered.—W.
F. Stevens, Live Stock Commissioner.

The health authorities in Jacksonville, Fla., by enforcing sanitary ordinances and making war on flies, reduced the mortality from typhoid fever in 1911 to a little less than one-half the figures for the previous year. It is held that everywhere fully 85 per cent. of the typhoid deaths could be prevented.

Much of the winter wheat west of here is killed. It sprang up a few weeks back and looked promising indeed, but the frosts have completely killed the tender shoots and some farmers are sowing down spring wheat or oats. A good number of farmers toward the foothills are going out of wheat and are putting in oats and barley, both of which are a sure crop.

NO WAR SAYS LONDON PAPER

The Spectator Gives a Remarkable

Analysis of the European Situation

London, England.—There can be no doubt that there is at the present moment a good deal of confusion among thinking men in England in regard to the European situation. It is clearly the Spectator is a remarkable specimen.

The reawakening of France and the evidence of its power and alertness have given immediate and universal satisfaction to this country, but the satisfaction is tempered by a universal anxiety to know the future of the European situation.

France is argued, are at this time very full of patriotic and martial ardor, and very certain that their army is in magnificent condition, not only in regard to its men but also as regard material, and especially as regards the question of all the mechanical power of war, artillery. At the same time, France, with all its natural glories, recognizes that for the moment Germany is at a disadvantage.

Austro-Hungary has its legs caught in the web of entanglements of the East. The great war for the new world will require help from Germany rather than be able to rely on the light comes with Austria-Hungary this entangled can give any help.

Italy will run the appalling risks involved by admission to the triple alliance. Germany, indeed, may be said to have publicly admitted its condition of dead-weight, and that at this moment asking its taxpayers to make an immense sacrifice in order that it may remedy that condition and out of its own population create a new army which will make up for the loss of the great French army.

France may feel that her national interest may be better served by the French government than by the German government, and that she should be able to do so.

And if this be the case, the French government may be able to do so.

France, French communications with Tunis, Algiers and Morocco might be severed by the German-Austrian fleet and the French fleet turned by German invasion of French territory.

German sea power is in reality unbeatable as much as France's army.

For these reasons France is not in the least likely to provoke war this year, as she is not going to conclude the Spectator, is Germany deliberately to provoke a conflict.

Local News

Miss McClellan was visiting friends in Parkland on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Johnstone visited friends in Granum on Sunday last.

Miss Birdie Walker of Calgary is spending a few days with her brothers.

Mrs. E. Couey of Calgary is spending a few days in and around the burg.

Mr. Alex Nablo of Calgary spent from Saturday night to Monday with friends around the village.

On account of weather condition the baseball game that was announced for this afternoon was postponed.

Miss Florence Johnson of Coleraine was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scragg on Saturday and Sunday last.

Many expressions of pleasure were heard on Sunday last at the improvements recently done at the Methodist church by the efforts of the ladies' aid, assisted by the pastor.

The new rendition of the fourth commandment, as exemplified by several parties around our village, seems to be as follows: "Six days shall thou labor and the seventh go shooting gophers."

Messrs. Colledge and Drumheller were visitors at the C. C. ranch last week. Jack Drumheller accompanied them as far as Calgary on their return home to Spokane.

At the meeting of the village council on Monday last a by-law was passed to clean all refuse off streets and alleys the first week of each month. This is a good thing and will make our village more presentable by keeping the streets clean.

The boy scout patrols are making steady improvement. They are expecting to make a show on the 24th. Enough funds have not yet come in to make it possible for them to appear in full uniform, but it is expected that there will be a good showing on that occasion.

Mothers' Sunday will be observed at the Methodist church on Sunday next, both at the Sunday school and at the evening preaching service at 8 o'clock. The pastor will take for his subject: "Mothers, Past and Present." Mothers are especially invited, but fathers are not excluded, neither are the children.

A petition of somewhat extraordinary nature was presented to the local council last week. It was signed by nearly all the citizens of the town, thirty six names being upon it. Its prayer was that in the interests of law and good morals, the license of the present pool room be cancelled. Practically all the heads of families in the town signed the petition. The present owner of the pool room was present at the meeting. He confessed to questionable games being played, but denied his responsibility, seeing that he took no "raids-off." There were other matters hinted at in the interests of good morals, which were even of a far more serious nature, and it was not the desire of the townspeople to press these, however, at the present time, unless the parties refused to obey the mandate of the council. The four members of the council decided to accede to the desire of the petition, with one dissentient. It is hoped that no further trouble will be experienced, as Cayley has already experienced some unenviable notoriety, which is not the fault of either its council or its citizens.

Bills are out for Cayley's 25th, of May celebration. This year promises to beat its predecessors to a frazzle.

The local Oddfellows met together on Tuesday night and decided to organize a Lodge for Cayley, and steps were taken with a view to that end. Cayley expects to start its Lodge with twenty-five charter members.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Reid of Calgary, widow of the late Harry Reid, who died in Cayley some two or more years ago. For some time past the late Mrs. Reid had been a great sufferer from an internal trouble, but nothing serious was anticipated until recently, and in spite of the best medical skill and careful nursing, the deceased succumbed to the fatal malady. Her remains were shipped to Cayley this morning for interment, where they were laid to rest this afternoon beside those of her husband in the Cayley cemetery, "in sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection." The Rev. O. E. Mann, pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the services at the church and graveside. A large number of the friends of deceased gathered together to show their sympathy and respect, following the remains to their last resting place.

The following item culled from a newspaper published down the C.N.R. line serves to dispel the idea that life is dull and uneventful in Alberta towns as well as to confound those cynics who say that subtle flattery is a lost art: "Mrs. Herbert Taylor," we are told, "who is a pleasant and estimable woman, and who can bake the finest cake ever made, having sent us some, therefore making us a judge, and who has a family of nice, clean, polite children, and who plays the piano beautifully and who gives lessons to a few fortunate pupils in our little city, had a tooth pulled on Friday."

ENGLISH COUNTRY BANKS.

It Takes Strong Iron Nerve to Win the Depositors' Confidence.

Rural customers attack great importance in the bank's current appearance. A thrifty tradesman having opened a deposit account with a bank distant some thirty miles from his home, the cashier had the curiosity to ask why he traveled so far when there was a branch of the same bank almost at his door. The depositor smiled knowingly and replied, "I lodged opposite here all the time while this bank was being built, so I know it's safe." Balance sheets to the rustic are a meaningless and arbitrary arrangement of figures. Iron nerve he understands.

In a city in the north of England there is a bank widely known for the artistic merit of its doors. Designed by an eminent sculptor, they are executed in solid iron, of course, and appear to represent tableaux from "Aeschylus' Prometheus" and Greek history. About a week after they were unveiled an old man who had been a depositor for many years withdrew his balance and took it to a rival bank almost opposite. Questioned as to his reason for changing, he replied, "I don't hold 'em them doors of theirs. Punched its ain't businesslike, and it ain't safe."—London Saturday Review.

A Perfect Disguise.
Frank Lockwood's bunter was excellent and always good humored. I recollect him once examining a detective in a divorce case, says a writer in London M. A. P. The witness was dressed in well cut broadcloth; he was portly; a massive gold chain and seals hung from his fob; he might have passed for a country banker or solicitor of the old style.

Sir Frank (very politely)—I believe you are a member of the eminent firm of detectives, Messrs. Blister & Co. I.

Witness—Yes, sir, I represent that firm.

Sir Frank—And, I presume, in the course of your professional duties you have to assume many disguises?

Witness—Yes, sir.

Sir Frank—Pray, may I ask you what you are disguised as now?

Turner Was Graft.
The great artist Turner is said to have been peculiar in his way of selling his pictures. At times nothing could induce him to part with one of them, and at other times he would receive a customer with the greatest affability of voice and manner and readily settle upon the sum to be paid for one of his treasures. On one occasion when he was offered £1,000 apiece for some old sketch books he turned them over text by text before the eyes of the would be purchaser, saying, "Well, would you really like to have them?" Then, just as the man proceeded to take possession of the books, Turner, with a tantalizing "I dare say you would" suddenly thrust them into a drawer and turned the key in the lock, leaving the customer dumb with indignation.
